JOINER Jason Morgan is in the driving seat after winning his dream motor in the Daily Star.

He hit top gear to land a sporty new Honda Civic Type-R – the model he wanted to buy six months ago but couldn't afford. Jason, 35, was the first winner in our Nobby's Knows contest in which we're giving away four of the cars. Tomorrow the second Honda, worth a cool £17,000, will go to the reader who wins our Number Cruncher multiple choice trivia quiz. Jubilant Jason, from Oldham, Lancs, says he and wife Susan, 38, can now hit the road in style.

Fate

He said: "Six months ago I looked at a Type-R at the garage and would have killed for it.

"It looked fabulous but I only had a maximum of £13,500 to spend so it was out of my league. I took another Honda Civic instead but I've kept looking in the showroom window at the Type-R every time I go past.

"Tve been a Daily Star reader all my life. I love cars, so when the contest started I did all five days and sent in my answer by text. It seemed like fate this model was meant for me."

After tomorrow we will be giving away another two identical motors—so keep playing, folks.

A nipple effect for

HOLLYOAKS layabout Gilly Knows Jessica Harris is the ONE because his nipples tingle any time she is near. Gilly's pulsating plink bits provide the fun as the lovestruck lad – played by Anthony Quinlan – woos sexy student Jessica Harris. And he scribbles his phone number on a chocolate wrapper, but Jessica (Jennifer Biddall, 20) eats the chocolate and throws the wrapper in the bin. Then he chucks a glass of water over his mate, Rhys, to get her attention. But the situation becomes even more ridiculous when he believes he is in love with her because of stirrings under his T-shirt. An insider for the Channel 4 soap said: "Gilly's antics always have fans in stitches and this latest flasco is no exception.

"Viewers will find his tingling nipples one of the year."

VIRGIN: Rosie will have sex shortly before her 15th birthday on Christmas Eve

Warning for Street bosses as shock plot gets the go-ahead

CORRIE chiefs have given the final go-ahead for their shock storyline of illegal

That final fateful journey has been chillingly re-created for a new movie.

been chillingly re-created for a new movie.

Diana and boyfriend Dodi Al Fayed, played by two unknown French actors, are seen stepping into the Mercedes limo with drunk-driver Henri Paul. It then speeds through Parisian streets chased by photographers on motorbikes before spinning out of control in the Pont de l'Alma tunnel. Insiders claim the film, out next year, aims to tell the true story of the "tumultuous" life of Diana.

And film-makers decided to recreate the last journey rather than rely on old footage.

"A beautiful, tortured woman who died much too young."

There have been many conspiracy theories surrounding the crash that killed Diana, 36, Dodi, 42, and Mr Paul, 41, in 1997.

But the source claimed the film working title Queen – wanted to stick to the known facts.

Weeks before her death Diana, mother of Princes William, now 23, and Harry, 21, had claimed she feared being bumped off in a car crash.

Tonight's episode of BBC1 spy saga Spooks also revolves around the death of the Princess.

A bizarre plot, featuring real footage of Diana's last moments, will claim she was murdered by MIS agents.

An inquiry into the death is being conducted by a team led by former Metropolitan police chief Lord Stevens, 63.

Dodi's father, Harrods owner Mohamed Al Fayed, 72, has always claimed they were murdered.

Suddenly he's demanding that he and his wife are issued the same invitations mum and her toyboy get.
He says that they're both equal now.
Dad wants to come to my son's fifth birthday to the school concert and – most terrifying of all – to my house for the Christmas break. He's insisting that I

MY boyfriend has given up his job and now gambles full time on the internet. A couple of weeks ago he hit a losing streak. He lost lots of money and finally came to me in despair.

came to me in despair.
He begged me to lend him
the £6,000 I had saved
towards a new car. Initially
I said no but in the end he said he'd kill himself if I didn't help.
Reluctantly I handed the cash over, and that night his luck changed and he made thousands. He paid me back my cash and I waited for my cut, but it has never come. Can you believe he hasn't given me one penny of his winnings?

JANE SAYS: No, I can't say that I'm surprised. If your boyfriend sees himself as a professional gambler, then why would he hand over his earnings? In his world your cash was a bridging loan. You should look at the bigger picture and be worried about a boyfriend who threatens to kill himself if you don't do as he says. # Chris spooks up for HUNKY Chris Parker aims to scare the wits out of us with a Most Haunted special even though he doesn't believe in ghosts!

The ex-EastEnders hunk, 21, is teaming up with Gail Porter, 34, to present Dead Famous live from some of Hollywood's top showbiz haunts. They'll be trying to make contact with the spirits of stars including James Dean, Marilyn Monroe, Charlie Chaplin and rocker Jim Morrison.

Angel

But as he gets set for the three-day show to kick off tomorrow, Chris is sceptical about their likelihood of encountering any ghostly celebs.

"Tve never had a supernatural experience," he says. "A few friends have said they we seen ghosts.

"Fern Britton reckons she's been touched by an angel. I know her from working on This Morning and she's quite level-headed. I can't see her making something like that up.

"I believe there's something out there, but I don't know quite what."

Viewers will see Gail team up with a

Meanwhile, Chris will be in the studio with historians, ghost-hunters and an audience.

"It's going to be pretty amazing," he says. "It will be my job to talk to Gail while she's searching for any paranormal activity.

"It's three live shows and they're three hours each. So if they don't find anything, I'm going to have to fill in a lot of time with the audience!

"But I'm really looking forward to it. We're going to be chatting to some friends and family of the deceased. We're even going to have Charlie Chaplin's family in the studio."

Out on the streets, Gail and American sychic Chris Fleming, 38, plan to visit the Culver Studios, where Gone With The Wind and King Kong were filmed.

They'll also investigate Hollywood High School, which nutrured the talents of Mickey Rooney, 85, and Judy Carland.

Chris has spent a lot of time with Gail preparing for the show. The Scottish lass, who recently split with Toploader husband Dan Hipgrave, 29, was in the news when it emerged she was suffering from hair-loss.

Girls

"Gail's so lovely," says Chris. "She's got such a great sense of humour. The reports in the Press don't bother her in the slightest. She's like, 'If my hair's falling out, then so be it'."
What else is Chris planning to do while he's in LA? "Maybe meet a few girls,' he says with a cheeky grin. "I like the girls out there. In the US I'm not so paranoid as I am over here. Although I can't think of anything worse than having to share my bed with someone every night!"

Chris admits he's a shy guy with girls and says he's useless at chatting up strangers. But he admits having lost his heart to an older woman. Although, sadly for him, she's happily married.
He says: "I'm totally in love with Zoe Ball. She's beautiful and talented. She just oozes coolness."
He adds of the Strictly Come Dancing star, 34: "I suppose I'm in love with her in a bit of an obsessed way."
Husband Norman Cook, 42, aka Fatboy Slim, had better take note.

Dead Famous is on Living TV tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday at 9pm.

WHAT'S UP DOC?: ITV1, 9pm

MARTIN Clunes is back on ITV1 tonight (9pm) as DOC MARTIN, the GP who's so grumpy, rude and tactless that he really ought to be working as a receptionist at my local surgery. A massive ratings smash the first time around (at its peak, it was just fractionally short of nine million viewers), the series returns to the picturesque Cornish village of Portwenn to find Dr Martin Ellingham (that's his real name, remember) still making a complete pig's ear of his friendship with primary school teacher Louisa (Caroline Catz). Having made some rather undiplomatic remarks about her dental hygiene regime (it hasn't occurred to him that she might take offence), the doc makes no attempt to apologise, preferring instead just to keep out of her way. But he's forced to start questioning his feelings when one of Louise's old flames show up, seemingly quite keen to rekindle their romance. As well as making Dr Ellingham desperately jealous, this guy is also soon challenging his professional judgment.

ALSO returning tonight are Five's spectacularly slappable interior design duo Colin and Justin with a new series of HOW NOT TO DECORATE (Five, 8pm). They decided that to kick off the new series it would be fun to work with a pair of celebrities, but the plan must have fallen by the wayside, because they've ended up with Neil and Christine Hamilton. Still, the Hamiltons of the the series for the serie offer them plenty of scope for bitchiness. Colin and Justin hate the décor of the couple's London flat, as underlined when Colin nat, as underlined when colin suggests one of the rooms "looks like it should smell of wee".

ELSEWHERE, lan The Weasel is gutted in EASTENDERS tonight (BBC1, 7.30pm) when he learns the Vic is not legally his after all. Diddums.

LÜS EREE

IT'S not every day that TV producers have to ask a dead Roman Emperor for permission to make a programme. But according to BBC1's DRAMA CONNECTIONS, that's what BBC1's DRAMA CONNECTIONS, that's what happened in 1976, when bosses wanted to film the classic Roman soap opera I, Claudius. Legend had it that the real Claudius, an emperor who was made into a god, put a curse on anyone trying to tell his story. In 1937, director Alexander Korda ignored this. But his film was abandoned after a series of disasters. Forty years on, the BBC weren't taking any chances, so they spoke to Robert Graves, who'd written the original novel. Graves told them Claudius would definitely approve of the project.

Despite an uncertain start, the show was a hit, with an all-star cast including Brian Blessed, Sian Philips and John Hurt. It influenced a generation of script-writers, including David Chase, creator of mob-drama series The Sopranos.

There were some dodgy attempts to prove that the curse of Claudius was for real.

We learned that after I Claudius, Margaret Tyzack, who played murderous Empress Livia, had to go to the States to find work. And George Baker, aka Inspector Wexford, didn't get another role for seven months. But that's not unusual for a TV actor. The programme continued its tradition of telling interesting stories of TV's greatest drama hits. It's been a mildly entertaining series throughout. But you wonder if the BBC should stop the nostalgia about its past success, and spend the money on new work. At least CORONATION STREET (ITV1) has started to look forwards. On Monday, Candice left to be Status Quo's hairdresser. Then last night Martin Platt took off. It's not really obvious why Martin had to go – he's not the most exciting bloke, but a soap needs a few ordinary characters to keep the whole thing looking real. Still, there's plenty to watch in Martin's absence, His son David, brilliantly played by Jack P Shepherd, is going off the rails. So even if the Street has lost some furniture, the next generation are able to fill the gap.

GOLF is simply a good walk spoiled according to American writer Mark Twain - and plenty of non-fans think he had a point. It's like a dog throwing itself a stick to chase after as far as they're concerned. But like plenty of sports, golf has some great terms you don't find anywhere else.

One of the listed items has been holed and can't be found in the grid. Which one?
